GROUND ONE

On November 24, 2014 I retained Robert E. Goldman, a former Assistant United States Attorney and Special Trial Attorney for the United States Department of Justice in collaboration with the FBI Art Crime Team, as my counsel. My decision to do so was prompted by a meeting with the FBI that I had earlier in the month where I failed to disclose the truth regarding a recently initiated federal investigation into my business dealings. As an act of contrition, I asked my counsel to contact the FBI and the AUSA regarding my case to discuss my cooperating with the government. Initial contact with SA Christopher McKeogh was made by my attorney on November 28, 2014 (see Exhibit A). Throughout December 2014, my attorney was in contact with AUSA, Andrew C. Adams who had been assigned to my case, in order to schedule a physical meeting in New York (see Exhibit B). At some point during December 2014, the AUSA scheduled a meeting for the beginning of February 2015 with my attorney. On December 13, 2014 I sent an email to my attorney detailing my desire to engage in "proactive" cooperation with the government (see Exhibit C) to expose ongoing art world frauds that I had knowledge of, even advising my attorney that I would be willing to place myself in "harms way" to do so (see Exhibit C). On January 7, 2015, in an anticipation of my counsel's forthcoming meeting with the AUSA, I sent another email to my attorney expanding on the concept of my willingness to cooperate with the government, this time describing how I could employ my legitimate credentials and reputation in the art world to go undercover for the government to expose art world frauds (see Exhibit D). Additionally on February 1, 2015, I sent emails to my counsel in anticipation of his forthcoming meeting with the AUSA continuing to expand upon my knowledge of art world frauds as offerings of cooperation with the government (see Exhibits E & F). Finally, on February 4, 2015, I sent an email to my attorney regarding a subject who I later found out was a highly desired target by the FBI Art Crime Team and the AUSA, expressing my desire to help the government infiltrate the subject's fraud ring (see Exhibit G, H & I).

When my attorney met with the AUSA in February 2015 and expressed my willingness to cooperate, the AUSA expressed interest in my doing so which would have initiated the plea bargaining process, however, the AUSA said that he would require me to come in to engage in a proffer where I would discuss my own crimes prior to engaging in proactive cooperation with others. It was at that time that my attorney advised me that he made a series of demands of the AUSA including having the government release to my attorney evidence that they had against me (see Exhibit J) as well as written assurance from the AUSA that leniency would be given to me in my own case in exchange for my cooperating with the government. When the AUSA refused my attorney's requests, my attorney became infuriated and advised me against communicating or cooperating with the government (see Exhibit J) unless they would fulfill his demands and that their unwillingness to do so was highly unorthodox. Despite my repeated phone calls to my attorney over the following months questioning his advice to me regarding not communicating or cooperating with the government, he persisted in advising me that such behavior was the only reasonable option under the circumstances because the AUSA was asking me to "fall on the sword" without meeting my attorney's demands of him. My attorney repetitively stated that his own experience as AUSA afforded him inside information regarding standard protocol with the Justice Department and that he would not tolerate the arrogance of such a young AUSA as Andrew C. Adams defying my attorney's requests.

My retained relationship with Robert C. Goldman continued into 2016, following my public arrest on February 3, 2016 for the crimes from which the investigation that I had retained Mr. Goldman to handle, stemmed. By February 16, Mr. Goldman was still advising me against any cooperation with the government whatsoever, despite the FBI having expressed an urgent desire for me to be an informant for them on the day of my arrest and the AUSA having now provided Mr. Goldman with a specific list of subjects that he was requesting my proactive cooperation regarding (see Exhibit K), specifically, one of the subjects that I had offered to Mr. Goldman over a year prior for communication to and cooperation with the government (see Exhibit G, H & I). Additionally on February 16, Mr. Goldman emailed to me a proffer agreement sent to him by the AUSA and Mr. Goldman in his email to me underlined all of the aspects of the agreement that Mr. Goldman deemed to be concerning and therefore prohibitive, in his opinion, to my cooperation with the government (see Exhibit L). It was at this time that I became very suspicious of Mr. Goldman's level of expertise and his ability to handle my case effectively. The final event of Mr. Goldman's representation of me occurred on March 7, 2016 when the AUSA emailed a plea bargain and forfeiture agreement to Mr. Goldman, which Mr. Goldman in turn emailed to me. The guidelines were 33-41 months in federal prison and the forfeiture agreement was for $1,450,000 and the scope of the case ranged from 2006-2015. Initially in February 2015, the AUSA had discussed a forfeiture and restitution of $200,000 - $400,000 (see Exhibit K) and having my case span from 2010-2015 if I would cooperate with the government, which remained consistent in the AUSA's statements to my attorney through February 16, 2016.

As a result of Mr. Goldman's professional legal advice to me not to cooperate with the government, which spanned in excess of a one year period of time, I experienced an undue prejudice in my case. Had I disregarded Mr. Goldman's counsel and cooperated in February 2015 upon the request of the AUSA and based upon my own inclination to do so, the proffer and therefore plea bargaining process would have begun much sooner than it ultimately did, my guidelines would have been significantly lower as a result of the government's willingness to view a reduced scope of my case and there would have been the realistic chance that my cooperation with the government would have been fruitful rather than having had the result that it did when I finally cooperated under my newly appointed attorney in April 2016, which the FBI told me was ultimately too late to be effective.

Robert E. Goldman's ineffective assistance of counsel hindered the Federal Government's ability to solicit my cooperation and therefore to engage in the plea bargaining process at numerous crucial times in my own case as well as in the government's investigation of other targets with whom I was in an exceptional position to provide proactive assistance with. As a result of Mr. Goldman's unrealistic and unreasonable demands of the AUSA which would have forced the AUSA to go against the standard protocol for SDNY had he chosen to comply, the AUSA was forced, in doing his job, to increase the scope of my case and therefore my guidelines in a desperate attempt to exhibit to me, who he felt to be uncooperative, the severity of circumstances. Furthermore, Mr. Goldman in his defiance and lacking even a basic knowledge of the standard operating procedures of SDNY failed to find basic form agreements such as the proffer agreement to be acceptable and believed that those should be altered specifically for my case, when in fact those same forms are used in almost all similar white collar cases within SDNY. Long after Mr. Goldman's departure from my case, the negative effects of his counsel continued to reverberate as the AUSA communicated to the probation officer of SDNY for my PSR that I made "last ditch efforts to cooperate" that "did not amount to successful investigations of additional targets." (see Exhibit N). The arguments of the AUSA regarding the delay in my cooperation in fact continued until the time of my sentencing which can be seen in a letter to The Honorable Lewis A. Kaplan on February 6, 2017 where the AUSA states "The Government found Spoutz candid in his proffer, believes that he made sincere, if ultimately fruitless, efforts to cooperate following his arrest, and agrees that the Court may consider Spoutz's efforts as a kind of contrition (albeit belated) when calculating the sentence...Spoutz's cooperation came long after he was initially approached by law enforcement, prior to his public arrest in this case." (see Exhibit O)

When I retained Robert E. Goldman, I relied upon his own representations regarding his substantial career experience with the United States Department of Justice (see Exhibit M), to act in my best interest in order to facilitate communications, negotiations and agreements that would be mutually beneficial to both the government and myself, which Mr. Goldman failed to do.

Hello Bob-

I'm trying to figure out what the next step is. I would like to be proactive about this in order to reduce or eliminate damage. What is the next step? I would like to meet with you in person asap.

Additionally, there are two forgery rings that I am willing to expose to the government under the right circumstances. One is a multi million dollar (possibly deca million dollar) national collectables forgery ring. The other is a much smaller modern masters print forgery ring. The larger of the two would be a gigantic score for the Feds and I would be willing to place myself in harms way, under the right circumstances, to help them to secure an indictment.

Bob, something else that you may consider mentioning when you do have a meeting is that by bringing me into the press, that is going to potentially jeopardize my effectiveness to be able to go undercover to aid the Fed's in investigations. Right now, I'm a reputable dealer that everyone wants to work with. If there is negative press about me regarding anything with the Fed's or the Justice Department, I would think that the people that I'll be pursuing for the Fed's will be reluctant to deal with me for fear that I'll turn on them. On a more practical level, I would hate to be murdered or injured because they thought that I was trying to pull something, which again could be as a result of any press.

Additionally, I'm happy to use my credentials, which are exceptional, and my professional standing to go undercover in any other investigations that they would want to use me in. I've been in this business for 16 years and my family has been since 1948. I've dealt with both the greatest and the worst dealers in the world. I know how to approach every form of transaction and how to transform myself in approach from runner to gallerist, from street dealer to elitist. This could all be very beneficial to them.

Just some thoughts that I had in passing...

Hello Bob:

We have returned from our trip. Are you still meeting with the prosecutor on Monday? After thinking about it, I have a couple more cases in addition to the two that I've previously mentioned to you that I can assist the Feds with. One is with a northeast dealer who is handling false Picassos and Chagalls. There are probably others that I can think of also. In other words, I have a large network of people, both positive and negative, that I've bumped into from time to time over the last 16 years. It should be noted that I've never had any affiliation with any of the subjects that I'm mentioning. It has only been through collectors who have brought artwork to me from those sources only to have my academic connections declare the work to be false that I became aware of them. During the research process, I spoke with each dealer and their bogus "experts" and had them offer to do future business with me if I was so inclined (I've never accepted).

Hopefully the Feds will find this to be of tremendous value as I know how to pursue deals with the subjects to benefit potential investigations if they are interested.

Bob, in addition to the cases that I detailed, I may be able to assist them with apprehending other dealers handing forged artwork. I will have to search my memory and my files to bring forth others if necessary. I suppose you can use the first four cases as a feeder and we can go from there.

I was thinking about what we discussed earlier regarding my knowledge of cases. Perhaps I've been overlooking the largest of them all which is my involvement with Bill Force. Although I sold less than 10 pieces to him, I developed a very close relationship with him that continues to this day (now, primarily in the form of him calling me). We have had thousands of E-~~XXXX~~6 hours of phone conversations over the last few years and I have intimate knowledge of his business circle. Although I never agreed to sell anything from him or any of his sources, that has never stopped him from continuing to offer many pieces attributed to many artists to me. I have hundreds of emails from him with such offerings.

Also, I am probably one of the few people that he still trusts and that he speaks openly to at great length. I know that he's trying to sell more artwork to fund his legal representation and he would gladly use me as the broker. I am one of the few people who is still in a position to be able to have very in depth, open conversations with him about subjects ranging from John Re, etc. which could be recorded.

Due to my very, very close relationship with him, I feel that I could be the Fed's greatest asset in gathering information at this point. Especially because he's very suspect of everyone else around him.

It should be noted that while I know that he has handled some of the most dangerous artwork of the 21st century, I don't feel that he has intentionally done anything wrong. He is in my opinion a delusional man who is incredibly naive. He's on a very weird spiritual journey with the artwork that he feels he "discovers" and seems to have a heart of gold. I can say that I've dealt with just about every personality type in this field, although Bill is unlike anyone I've ever met.

I will only do this if it keeps my name out of the press with my own case. Please let me know your thoughts.

Best-
Eric

Eric, My take on it is that they believe you were involved in a wide ranging fraud but do not have the proof they need right now. Therefore, they are working to attempt to build a case against you. You will remember that they would not disclose what evidence they had against you and their view of the case was way off base. Given that decision making on their part, it was premature and harmful to your position to merely go in blindfolded and talk with them.

It is their common practice to circle back to us once they believe they have a case. Even if they were to indict you without advanced notice, you always have the option then of working out a deal and still getting the reduction for acceptance of responsibility. Bob

1. Adams states that he never stated that he would not charge you in exchange for cooperation. He said that if you cooperate, he could delay indictment for a period of 30 days and that if it results in a cooperation plea agreement, they would file an Information against you and you would plead to that. [FYI, an Information has the identical effect as an Indictment. An Indictment is returned by a grand jury at the request of the prosecutor. An Information is an identical document as an indictment but is signed by the US Attorney since the defendant waives his right to Indictment.]

This is what Adams was willing to tell me re the subject matter he wants you to talk about:

Alessi bought DeKoonings and a Kline and resold
He asked ES for backdated bill of sale that remedied a problem Alessi was having Force & Burns dealt with John Re and Leo Mangin.

Dealt with a lot of fake pieces including a Pollack and used fake provenances
He wants to know what you know about them and your telephone conversations with them
Dealer 1 in the Complaint is Burns
Are Force & Burns involved in criminality or are they victims of others, including possible ES

The Smithsonian matter deals w ES (Goodman) providing false information to Museum in order to get them to accept a contribution of an item by ES. ES did this in order to then use as a marketing tool the fact that the Smithsonian has materials from ES in its collection

He presently estimates the direct loss attributed to you as between 200,000 and 400,000. This before any resale by purchaser from you.

Digest all of this and we will talk.

 FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK
 UNITED STATES V. ERIC IAN HORNAK SPOUTZ, DKT. 0208 1:16CR00392-001

TOTAL OFFENSE LEVEL 20
 CRIMINAL HISTORY CATEGORY I

	Statutory Provisions	Guideline Provisions	Recommended Sentence
CUSTODY:	Ct. 1: 0 years-20 years	33 months-41 months	33 months
SUPERVISED RELEASE:	Ct. 1: 0 years-3 years	Ct. 1: 1 year-3 years	3 years
PROBATION:	1 year-5 years	Ineligible	Not recommended
FINE:	Ct. 1: $250,000	$7,500-$75,000	Not recommended
RESTITUTION:	$154,100	$154,100	$154,100
FORFEITURE:	$1,450,000	$1,450,000	$1,450,000
SPECIAL ASSESSMENT:	Ct. 1: $100	Ct. 1: $100	Ct. 1: $100

Justification:

The defendant stands before the Court having pled guilty to one count of Wire Fraud. This represents the first known criminal conviction for this 33-year-old defendant. In the instant offense, the defendant, using various aliases, sold counterfeit works of arts by renowned artists. The offense spanned for an approximate a nine-year period causing about to $1.45 million in loss (including intended loss) to the victims. A restitution of figure of $154,100 has been tabulated. The defendant's advisory guidelines range is 33 to 41 months.

EN

The defendant had a difficult upbringing. His father abused alcohol and drugs. In addition, he physically and emotionally abused the defendant's mother. Spoutz described his mother as the "poster child for depression." His parents divorced when he was about nine years of age. When he was about 19 years of age, Spoutz lost an uncle and a grandfather; both individuals were very dear to him. This appears to have been a very difficult time in his life. Spoutz married in 2012, although following his arrest in the instant, he separated from his wife for a period of time. They are currently in the process of reconciling. They do not have any children. Since his arrest in February 2016, he has been unemployed. He is supported by his mother. His work history has always been in the fine arts industry.

Spoutz reported that between the ages of 18 and 30, he was under the care of a mental health professional. Reportedly, he was diagnosed with Bipolar Disorder and was prescribed medication throughout his treatment. In 2013, he appears to have abruptly stopped treatment and taking medication. He said that he regretted taking the medication over the years and currently feels the best that he has felt in years.

X

The defendant's actions in the instant offense were particularly callous. While he held himself out as someone who promoted the arts, he repeatedly tainted the credibility of the art industry through his fraudulent sales. While he did not discuss his involvement in the instant offense, he alluded to the fact that his fraudulent sales coincided with difficult financial times. We spoke with the Government who indicated that following his arrest in the instant offense, the defendant attempted to make some consensual telephone calls. But these calls did not amount to any successful investigations of additional targets. While his last ditch efforts to cooperate could be deemed commendable, we believe a guidelines sentence is appropriate in this case. The actual loss in this case of $1.45 million is difficult to overlook. After taking into account the nature and circumstances of the offense, as well as the history and characteristics of the defendant, we recommend a sentence at the low end of the guidelines range. We believe this sentence is sufficient but not greater than necessary to comply with the purposes set forth in 18 U.S.C. §3553(a)(2). A $100 special assessment is mandatory, as is $154,100 in restitution. We recommend special conditions of financial disclosure and financial restrictions to ensure enforcement of any order of restitution or fine. Based on his extensive past mental health treatment, as a special condition of supervised release, we recommend that he participate in mental health treatment.

Pursuant to the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994, for offenses committed after September 13, 1994, the court shall require that all offenders on probation, parole, or supervised release submit to one drug test within fifteen days of commencement of probation, parole or supervised release and at least two drug tests thereafter for use of a controlled substance, unless ameliorated or suspended by the court due to its determination that the defendant poses a low risk of future substance abuse as provided in 18 USC 3563 (a) (5) / 3583 (d).

Re: United States v. Eric Ian Hornak Spoutz, 16 Cr. 392 (LAK)

Dear Judge Kaplan:

The Government writes separately regarding the upcoming sentencing of Eric Ian Hornak Spoutz, and with a request that this letter be maintained under seal in light of the sensitive nature of its contents.

Following Spoutz's arrest in this case on February 10, 2016, Spoutz, through his attorney, expressed an interest in cooperating with the Government in connection with other, ongoing frauds about which Spoutz professed to have knowledge. On April 5, 2016, Spoutz attended a proffer session with the Government, during which Spoutz discussed his own crime and potential targets for further investigation. Thereafter, one of those individuals became a subject of investigation regarding then on-going attempts to sell forged Picasso paintings using many of the same methods that Spoutz had used in his own criminal endeavors. Spoutz agreed to make recorded telephone calls and to provide the Government with copies of correspondence between Spoutz and this target. After several such communications, the Government terminated its efforts to use Spoutz proactively in an investigation of that target, and determined that Spoutz's information was unlikely to result in any investigatory benefit to the Government. At that point, the Government informed Spoutz, through his counsel, that the Government would no longer be proffering Spoutz and that the Government was prepared to move forward toward sentencing in this case.

X The Government found Spoutz candid in his proffer, believes that he made sincere, if ultimately fruitless, efforts to cooperate following his arrest, and agrees that the Court may consider Spoutz's efforts as a kind of contrition (albeit belated) when calculating a sentence under the § 3553(a) sentencing factors. Nevertheless, Spoutz's efforts do not change the Government's view that a Guidelines sentence is appropriate in this case. Spoutz's cooperation came long after he was initially approached by law enforcement, prior to his public arrest in this case. His cooperation may well have been more useful had he not initially lied to law enforcement when first confronted with his crimes in November of 2014.

In light of the sensitive nature of this letter, the Government respectfully requests that this letter be maintained under seal.

Respectfully submitted,

Ground Two

Throughout the course of the federal investigation into my fraudulent business dealings which lasted for nearly 1 1/2 years and the subsequent case resulting from formal charges and a public arrest on February 3, 2016, my initial attorney, Robert E. Goldman, hindered both my efforts and that of the government to enter into a proffer, cooperation and plea bargaining process (see Exhibit P). When finally, without prior cooperation, a plea bargain was presented by the AUSA, Mr. Goldman forwarded it in its entirety to me by email and advised me to continue to decline cooperation with the government as well as advising me to decline the plea bargain with the advice that my case should proceed to trial, despite my having expressed the desire to plead guilty to Mr. Goldman. When I expressed interest in entering into a plea bargain with the government and asked Mr. Goldman whether he could negotiate more favorable terms to the plea bargain that the government had sent, he responded "No. It is what it is." Shortly thereafter Mr. Goldman was relieved from my case and Jean D. Barrett was appointed as my counsel. Upon the appointment of Ms. Barrett, I immediately expressed my desire to cooperate with the government, which she said she almost always recommends to her clients and she thereby opened communications with the AUSA to schedule the requisite proffer. It was also at that time that she presented the plea bargain, verbatim, that Mr. Goldman had presented to me weeks earlier from the government. When I asked her if she could negotiate the plea bargain, she said that she could not. She never attempted to, therefore, I ultimately signed the exact plea, which had never been negotiated in the least, that had been sent by the AUSA to my initial attorney, Robert E. Goldman. Based upon the aforementioned facts and sequence of events, I allege ineffective assistance of counsel from Robert E. Goldman and Jean D. Barrett for their both failing to make even the most basic attempts at negotiating the plea bargain from the AUSA despite my repeated requests.

Subject: Agreement between prosecutor & attorney
Date: Mar 29, 2016, 10:34:14 AM
To: Jean Barrett jeanbarrett@ruhnkeandbarrett.com

Dear Jean:

The agreement between my attorney and the prosecutor, as I understood it, was that with my cooperation on their requested list of subjects and a guilty plea, the government would only trace the case back to 2010 and confine the loss amount to $200,000 - $400,000.

The next day after court where that offer was made, I sent my attorney an email instructing him to contact the prosecutor to offer my full cooperation. My attorney, however, did not follow my instructions stating to me he did not want to appear "weak" in the eyes of the government and that he wanted my case to go to indictment, discovery and hopefully trial. He went against my wishes.

I would like to see if we can get the government to honor their original offer.

Eric
